

Our Story

It seems like only yesterday. WJ was supposed to be in California, and somehow instead he wound up in Indianapolis, Indiana. It was a Sunday afternoon, and WJ didn't expect anyone to be at the office when he got into town. As luck would have it, Genna Chernyak was there and let WJ in to have a tour of the office and get his keys.

Tagging along with Genna was this breath-taking beauty who was completely quiet, not saying a word. When the tour was finished, WJ slyly asked Genna how long him and the girl had been married. Of course the answer was they were not married, just friends. Over the course of the next month or so, WJ would chat with Natalia whenever he could. He would try to get information out of Genna relentlessly. One night, it just so happened Natalia's ride didn't show up, which meant she was going to be stuck at the office until very late. WJ somehow happened to overhear the conversation, saw his moment of opportunity and took it. "Do you like movies?" WJ asked from across the room as he was thumbing through the movie section of the local paper. "Yes, but only Victorian Age type movies with beautiful costumes, dresses, hats, and gloves."

Natalia replied. Natalia knew these movies were rare, and figured that would be the end of the conversation. "Well, it just so happens that there is a movie playing right now called Shakespeare in Love, that is exactly that type of movie. If we leave right now, we can catch the next show, I can't go see a movie like that by myself, so if you would accompany me, it's my treat!" WJ replied. Of course not accepting no for an answer, that night began the great story of their love. Natalia graciously followed WJ all across the United States, until she eventually turned the tables on him, when he had to follow her to Menomonie. It has been a wonderful trip so far, and they both look forward to many years of adventure and love together.

Judy Vincent (WJ's mom) can tell you the whole story, but suffice it to say both are here in spirit through these doves.
